Tribute from Daughter Rhonda

Remembering my Dad... The most remarkable thing about him was his kindness, humility, and generosity. He had a selfless nature and was always ready to lend a helping hand to anyone in need, even if it meant giving away his last possession.

His love for his hometown of Cayman Brac, Spot Bay, was unconditional, and nothing could replace the feeling of being at home for him. Even when seeking medical treatment away from home, he eagerly counted down every day until he could return to his beloved Spot Bay.

I will never forget the day we flew out on the air ambulance. Despite not feeling well, he was both nervous and excited about the unknown journey ahead, and the sparkle in his eyes was hard to miss. I watched him as he peered out the plane windows, and the look of amazement on his face when we flew low enough to see images of boats was unforgettable.

He wanted to get up, but they wouldn't allow him, and that turned into frustration. It was as if he was a kid experiencing Disneyland for the first time.

My father had a passion for painting. He was the only person I knew who could get excited about paintbrushes and color charts. He could hold a paintbrush at any angle with a steady hand. He was a jack of all trades, and once he set his mind to do something, he got it done. Whether it was electrical, plumbing, mechanical, or carpentry work, he didn't believe in paying someone to do something that he was capable of doing.

He savored a good cup of coffee, could eat corned beef without any seasonings, enjoyed avocados with hard dough bread, and any coconut-based dinner that included flour dumplings, with a special love for Aunt Campbell's flour dumplings and cranberry sauce.

He would even eat cranberry sauce with fish.

We were so alike in temperament that disagreements sometimes caused us to let time pass before communicating with each other:

Our last conversation was me talking, and I believe he heard me as he struggled to open his eyes and looked at me in acknowledgment.

Daddy, you are now at peace and free from pain, with no more annoying doctors and needles. (I hope that wasn't a "cut eye" you were giving me). I will miss you greatly, but I find comfort in knowing that you are now at peace. You will always have a special place in my heart, and I will always cherish the memories we shared. I am sure that your Mom and Dad are overjoyed to see you again, especially Aunt Debbie. Let her know that her her boys are doing well, healthy, and living life to the fullest.

Rest in peace, Dad. I love you, Rhonda.

Tribute from Campbell Tibbetts

My dear BoBo, I took care of you from you were six weeks old up until your death; no words can express the grief I feel. Sleep in peace until we meet again, your only Aunt, Campbell.
